

c 2277-2248 BC Babylonia (akkad) Chronology

SARGON I

Sargon I ruled Akkad (about 2277 - 2248 BC). In 2264 BC he defeated Lugal-zagges, an Akkadian.

His grandson Naram-Sin (about 2197-2160 BC), attained still greater glory and acquired a larger domain.

2277BC

Chinese Chronology

The Chinese reckon the 12th yr of the 1st Cycle (of 60) as the 81st yr of Emperor YAO's life (2277BC)

2277 BC

The Chinese were able to devise a system of reckoning by cycles of 60. Each of the days in the cycle had a particular name and a date could be noted by the name of the day, month and year.

The Chinese reckon the first year of the 1st Cycle as the 81st year of Emperor Yao's life (2277 BC)

2277 BC

Duncan; Cal

The Chinese reckon the first year of the 1st cycle as the 81st
year of Emperor Yao's life 2277 BC.

(See Card 206 BC)

Encyc Americana pg 641

2277 BC

---

The Chinese Cycles of 60 years
begin with 2277 BC.

2272 BC. → 2182 BC

Pepi II succeeded to throne of Egypt.

He reigned 90 years.

Within 2 years Egypt fell apart

2270 - 2230 BC

---

Naram-Sin renews Akkadian vigin

Herrians infiltrate northern mesopotamias and Syria from the north.